BORAH ASSAILS COOLIDGE'S POLICY

IN NICARAGUAN TROUBLES MAKES IMPASSIONED SPEECH

Muzzle Guns and Be Friendly Toward Latin American Countries, Let the Southern Republic Choose Their Own President In Special Election, Is Proposal Advanced—Submit Mexican Row To Arbitration.

Inauguration of a campaign of peace with the abolition of the idea of force in the dealings of the United States with Central American countries was urged in the senate body Thursday by Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, Republican, chairman of the foreign relations committee.

As first steps in that direction he proposed a special election to permit the people of Nicaragua to choose their own president and the submission to arbitration of the controversy with Mexico over its land laws.

With these suggestions, the Idaho senator concluded in characteristically dramatic fashion an attack of an hour and a half on the administration's policy in dealing with the Nicaraguan situation and in recognizing the Adolfo Diaz government, which he contended was set up illegally.

"Inaugurate a campaign of peace," thundered Senator Borah; "abolish the idea of force; try friendly relations; seek to establish amity; seek to get in touch with the masses, with the people themselves, and we can establish a policy in Central America which will protect our interests and respect our rights and which will do that which we are entitled to do—receive special consideration from these people."

While Senator Borah unfolded his views both of the situation in Nicaragua and of the administration's policy virtually every member of the senate now in Washington was in his seat and gave the closest attention to his remarks. Many members of the house crowded on the floor of the senate and the galleries were filled. There were few interruptions from other senators, an unusual occurrence in senate discussion.

The address of the foreign relations committee chairman, however, started a senate debate that brought out opinions on both sides of the controversy, including a general defense of the administration by Senator Irvin L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, Republican member of the foreign relations committee.

Elsewhere, too, the day's events saw the Mexican-Nicaraguan imbroglio developing in several directions. The house foreign affairs committee, after another fruitless debate, voted by a majority of one not to call Secretary Frank B. Kellogg before it and then suspended its session indefinitely.

Two more American destroyers were ordered to Nicaraguan water, but the navy department said they would replace two already there.

Further outbreaks of anti-American sentiment in Mexico brought no outward reaction from the state department beyond a denial of the recurring report that the government is considering withdrawal of Ambassador James R. Sheffield.

In another statement, the department confirmed that it had considered designating a former marine officer to organize the Nicaraguan constabulary but said that his duties would not make him a part of the Nicaraguan army.

A ray of hope for better times in the Central American trouble zone is an effort of the president of Costa Rica to mediate between the Nicaraguan factions. The state department has approved this move and hopes for its success, but has no advice for the progress made.

Senator Borah's address on the Mexican-Nicaraguan situation long had been waited. He had kept silence in accord with the tacit understanding with the administration that his views should be withheld until after the appearance Thursday of Secretary Kellogg before the senate foreign relations committee to amplify the administration's statements as given to the congress and the country Monday by President Coolidge.

At the outset, the Idaho senator declared this was not "a personal controversy" between the president and himself or between Secretary Kellogg and himself. He added that as he viewed the situation it involved "profoundly a question of national policy."

Detailing the history of events in Nicaragua since 1909, as he understands them, Senator Borah left no doubt that his information is at wide variance with that of the administration.

Disputing the theory advanced in certain quarters that the Monroe Doctrine is applicable in the present situation, the chairman of the foreign relations committee argued that this doctrine should not be used to reach far beyond the mere protection of rights or the property of American citizens and to interfere with the sovereignty of a people. Senator Borah said he understood that as far back as 1909 the American government or its agents had undertaken to interfere with the internal affairs of Nicaragua by supporting a revolution against the then President Zelaya, and that after President Diaz first was made president in 1912 the country negotiated the internal loan and interoceanic treaties with Nicaragua.

Declaring that the Diaz government could not have lasted over night without the support of American marines the senator declared that the United States had in effect made those treaties with itself.

"That transaction is as pronounced and unconscionable an act of imperialism as ever disgraced any nation with whom we have in the past been willing to exchange criticisms," he said.

Senator Borah said these treaties were obnoxious to a great part of the Nicaraguan people and that there could be no peace until the United States could obtain the judgment of the Nicaraguans on them.

STING OF BEE

Caused Death of Mrs. Joseph Shipley After a Long Illness.

Mrs. Louella Shipley, of New Holland, wife of the late Joseph Shipley was called by death at her home at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday evening following a lingering illness of the brain of several months, caused from the sting of a bee, last summer. Her husband passed away in November, 1925.

She was a very lovable citizen in the community, being a member for many years of the Church of Christ.

She was the mother of nine children, the oldest of whom, a boy, died in infancy. Living are four daughters Mrs. Charles Beachdell, of Washington C. H., Mrs. Benford Millar, of Ashville; Mrs. Fred A. Dyar, of Akron, and Grayce, at home, and four sons, Frank, of London, Robert, of Sedalia, Charles of Columbus and Clayton of this city. Mrs. Ed. Gordon is a sister and R. B. Barker, a brother of the deceased. There are a large number of Up to the time of al-Itanya grandchildren and other relatives. —New Holland Leader.

In the line of definitions, there's nothing much better than this: "A pessimist is a fellow who has had too many transactions with an optimist."

Blue Laws Enforced in a New Jersey Town

Sudden enforcement of the blue laws of 1754 resulted in the arrest of scores of the citizens of Irvington, N. J., for violating the Sabbath and there was great indignation in the community. Above is seen the proprietor of an ice cream parlor being taken into custody. The offenders were fined $2 each.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires
By Correspondents of the United States Press
Association.

Greenville—Mrs. Ella Smith, 64, widow, is in a serious condition at a hospital as a result of burns suffered at her home near Coletown, when she mistook a gasoline can for one containing coal oil.

Steubenville—Authorities of eastern Ohio were searching today for a supposed king of the black hand who is thought to be responsible for three murders during the past two months.

Gallipolis—Perry C. Gatewood, prominent Gallia county farmer, was found guilty of manslaughter Thursday night in the killing of Hiram Johnson, a tenant on Gatewood's farm. The men quarreled over a crop of tobacco they had raised on Gatewood's farm.

Cleveland—Ben Nadel, protector of Pat McDermott, convicted slayer of Don R. Mellett, will be arraigned for sentence before Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon. Nadel was found guilty of harboring a felon by a jury Wednesday.

Cleveland—Albert Collins, former federal dry agent will be sentenced today by Federal Judge Paul Jones for the death of Paul Weinstein, 12. Collins was found guilty late Thursday of manslaughter in the death of the boy, whom his automobile is alleged to have crushed August 25. The jury deliberated four hours.

Cincinnati—Death excused two retired Cincinnati policemen from federal jury service Thursday and today.

Judge Smith Hickenlooper excused former police lieutenant, James B. Brangan, when he received word that Brangan's wife, Anna, died suddenly during the night.

Columbus—Will Rogers, life member of the Columbus police force, was welcomed by a special committee from the mayor, when he arrived this morning. The former Ziegfeld star was presented with keys to the city by the committee.

HISTORIC OLD SCHOOL HOUSE IS RESTORED

Henry Ford Buys Building
Where Mary and Her Little Lamb Entertained.

The schoolhouse where Mary and her little lamb "made the children laugh and play" is to be reopened by Henry Ford as a school for Sudbury, Massachusetts, children. Sixteen pupils ranging from the first to the sixth grades will attend the sessions, which will start of January 17.

Last May Ford bought the little schoolhouse in Sterling, where the pet lamb followed Mary Sawyer to school many years ago and inspired the poem. Since 1855, the building had been used as a barn in connection with the parsonage of the First Baptist church, but the original frame was intact and was moved to the vicinity of the Wayside Inn in Sunbury, now owned by Ford.

The interior of the building was reconstructed to as close a resemblance as possible of the former schoolroom.

GET-TOGETHER SENIOR PARTY IN JACKSON

Monday, January 10 the senior class of the Jackson township high school held a "get-together" party at the home of Miss Dorothy Wolfe.

Misses Mabel Florence, Bertha Carle Sadie Malone, Maxine Hoover, Marvene Hoover, Bessie Arledge, Mildred Finley, Dorothy Wolfe, Messrs. Theodore Koch, Marvin Rhoades, Ralph Rhoades and Russell Andrews, who are all of the seniors, and Miss Helen Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Harmon and Mr. and Mrs. George McDowell spent the evening in a most enjoyable way playing novel games which were both exciting and amusing. At 10 o'clock a dainty two course luncheon was served.

Ink Balls on Oaks

Ink balls are caused by a certain species of gaffly. The insect punctures the bark of the tree and lays its eggs. After the egg hatches the young insect lives in the gall or ink ball. Such galls appear only on certain species of trees, particularly the oak, because the insect seems to prefer those trees.

HAMMERERS ON NATION'S ANVIL OF ENDEAVOR

Discordant Note Sounded by Idaho Senator in Speech in the Capitol.

"Down with imperialism!" reverberates from Moscow.

"Down with imperialism!" is echoing in growing volume from far-riven China.

"Down with imperialism!" rings raucously from the City of Mexico.

"Down with imperialism!" proclaim prominent units of the eastern seaboard press.

"Down with imperialism!" solemnly orates the senatorial oracle from Idaho.

With the quintet of hammerers on the nation's anvil of endeavor with respect to the application of a firm policy toward the Latin-American republics, is joined in choral ululation every Communist organization, every red, pink and "yellow disciple of Bolshevism in this country."

Secretary Kellogg's statement made to the foreign relations committee exposes the fangs of the international serpent. Even the most pronounced critics of the president's policy with reference to Nicaragua—with one notable exception—appear not quite willing or prepared to assist Moscow in the establishment of a major base of operations in the western hemisphere in Mexico, from which base could ooze without restriction, the poisoned current of evil activities against the United States.

Who was the conspicuous exception to remain unconvinced and unmoved by the message of the secretary of state? You have guessed it? Senator Borah.

Frederick Marvin for months in the New York Commercial has been exposing the Communist activities in Mexico designed to injure the United States, and from other sources, equally authoritative, have come reports and evidences sufficiently reliable to convince the average intelligent citizenship of the country that these activities have long been encouraged by the Mexican government.

The state department was fully advised in the premises and had strained the boundaries of patience in its efforts to compose an admittedly delicate problem. All its well intentioned efforts went for nothing. And then the "silent" president spoke—and acted.

Secretary Kellogg explains the reasons for this action. The country indorses the action. It is a poor sort of citizen who does not elect first to stand by his own country in emergencies of international discord and dispute.

In this connection Senator Johnson again has demonstrated the soundness of his statesmanship and the quality of his Americanism by pointing out that even if the United States should be accused of "backing the wrong horse originally, it is a condition and not a theory that now confronts us." He sapiently concludes:

"Inasmuch as we are there, I am not disposed to indulge in delicate distinctions of Nicaraguan constitutional law, but to remain as long as American interests demand it."

The voice of California's able representative rings more pleasantly in American ears than do the croakings of the augur from Idaho. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHOLESALE PILFERING

Autos parked in front of the Memorial hall Thursday evening were stripped of their accessories such as spare tires, spotlights, motometers and head light frames and pumps. The thieves were caught in the act and the pelf was recovered. Lawrence Taylor, a boy nineteen years of age was placed under arrest but the other got away. He will be brought in this evening. The arrests were made by Officers McCrady and Fitzpatrick.

The cars belonged to members of the Eagles who were attending a dance in the hall.

AMBULANCE TRIP

Forest Rinehart, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rinehart, who resides near this city on the Island road, was injured Friday morning near the Groce packing house while loading ties for Sturm & Dillard, Chesapeake & Hocking Railroad company contractors. He was taken to the office of Dr. D. V. Courtwright where an X-Ray examination was taken, which disclosed that he sustained a slight fracture of the right leg below the knee. The Mader & Ebert ambulance removed the injured man to the home of his parents.

Boston Teaches Britain

As we glanced over the current number of the London Graphic a familiar picture caught our eye—that of the open parking space on our own St. James avenue. "Here is one of the motor lessons that Britain may still learn from the U. S. A." runs the footnote; and then this: "It was taken from the roof of the new police headquarters which, by happy accident or stealthy design, adjoins the car park." —Boston Transcript.

Cod Liver Oil for Hens

Feed a hen cod liver oil, and what happens? The hen lays bigger and better eggs. Dr. Arthur A. Holmes of Boston described at the recent meeting of the American Chemical society how he gave Rhode Island Red pullets daily doses of cod liver oil, rich in vitamin A. Although the hens laid more and larger eggs as a result of this stimulation, it did not hurt them physically. They showed increased vitality, did not lose weight, and had more resistance to disease.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETED

For Basket Ball Between St. Xavier and Circleville Fives.

St. Xavier College athletic authorities last night completed arrangements for a basket ball game between the Musketeers and the Circleville Athletic Club quintet of Circleville, Ohio, for Saturday evening at the Cincinnati Club Gymnasium.

The Circleville team holds a 28 to 22 victory over the Musketeers. The upstate quintet displayed a whirlwind attack in the college boys' opening encounter on New Year's night.

"Speed" Gatrell, as the Circleville star forward is known, is accredited with being one of the fastest men playing independent ball in Central Ohio. He gave the Musketeers a great amount of trouble in the opening game, and Coaches Joe Meyer and John Noppenberger will have their charges prepared to stop this opponent.

Coach Meyer, speaking of the Circleville booking, indicated that he believed it was necessary in view of the fact that next week the Musketeers will meet the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. Wildcats at the "Y" and St. Louis University at the Cincinnati Club. St. Xavier defeated Loyola University of Chicago on Monday evening in a 23-to-21 contest.

Meyer said he plans to shift his men around until he has a combination which performs satisfactorily. The Musketeers used nine men in the Loyola game.

The Circleville-St. Xavier contest will start at 8:30 o'clock.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Might Almost Claim That Clock "Thinks"

A clock that turns the lights of the house off or on at any time desired and almost puts out the cat was exhibited at the National Research council in Washington recently. The clock is termed almost human by its inventor, Dr. J. F. Van Slyke, of the Horological Institute of America. It resembles an every-day clock, but it is wound up by a motor built into the movement and operated by the ordinary house electric current. Not only does it record the time of the day, but also the day of the month and the month of the year. This is indicated by two small hands in place of the second hand. The clock can be so set that it will turn the electric lights in the house or office where it is located off or on at any time desired. If the electric current is accidentally cut off the clock will keep on running for more than four days without electrical winding, and at the end of that time if the current is turned on again the clock will "pick up" the lost windings.

LORAIN CHIEF SPEAKS JUST A BIT TOO SOON

As He Tells Governor How Well He enforces Law, U. S. Men Arrest 24 In His City.

Lorain, Jan. 12.—Theodore Walker, chief of police here, gratified by his work in drying up the city, today went to Columbus to report personally to Governor Donahey that law enforcement conditions in Lorain are "very satisfactory."

Before the smoke of the train which carried the chief on his mission had lost itself in the atmosphere, federal prohibition agents turned the city over and arrested 24 persons.

It was the most concerted action taken by federal men in this city, against liquor law violators, in this city.

The raiders, in their zeal, wrecked several places where liquor is alleged to have been sold and hustled their victims to Cuyahoga county jail, Cleveland, to await arraignment before a U. S. commissioner tomorrow.

Among those arrested are three women.

THE DOG

I've never known a dog to wag His tail in glee he didn't feel, Nor quit his old-time friend to tag At some more influential heel. The yellowest cur I ever knew Was, to the boy who loved him, true. I've never known a dog to show Halfway devotion to his friend, To seek a kinder man to know Or richer, but unto the end The humblest dog I ever knew Was, to the man that loved him, true.

I've never known a dog to fake Affection for a present gain, A false display of love to make, Some little favor to attain. I've never known a Prince or Sport That seemed to be what he was not.

But I have known a dog to fight With all his strength to shield a friend, And whether wrong or whether right, To stick with him until the end. And I have known a dog to lick The hand of him that men would kick.

And I have known a dog to bear Starvation pangs from day to day With him who had been glad to share His bread and meat along the way.

No dog, however mean or rude, Is guilty of ingratitude. The dog is listed with the dumb, No voice has he to speak his creed.

His messages to humans come By faithful conduct and by deed. He shows, as seldom mortals do, A high ideal of being true.

LOANS UP TO $500.

If your wife insisted on a shelf in the kitchen and you were drafted to put it up, you wouldn't send to the big lumber camps in Oregon for a three-foot board.

Then when you need to borrow a small amount of money, why should you go to a big commercial bank?

$25 to $500 is to you, when you need it, just about the most important thing in the world, but it is unimportant to the banks that furnish the money to run factories and big businesses.

The City Loan is not a bank, but was established especially to supply money in small amounts to meet the needs of people of modest incomes.

Many homes have been made brighter, many small businesses successful, by the simple combination of common sense and City Loan cash.

Origin of Candy

Over 200 years ago an English doctor was moved to pity for a little girl who had to take nasty medicine, so he made a mixture of sugar, water and flavoring extract. This he gave to the little girl with her medicine and she liked it so well that the doctor was persuaded after her recovery to prepare more of the delightful concoction with the medicine omitted. He called the preparation "candy." And that's how the popular confection originated.—Thrifty Magazine.

ANCIENT CULTURE FOUND IN ALASKA

Attributed to Indians and Eskimos.

Washington.—"The ancient inhabitants of the Bering sea coasts and islands, who developed the 'fossil ivory culture,' reached a degree of industrial differentiation and art so high that we have nothing to compare with them in America except among the more highly developed tribes of the northwest coast and those of Mexico, Yucatan and Peru." That is one of the conclusions reached by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, anthropologist of the Smithsonian institution, as a result of his exploration of Alaska last summer for the bureau of American ethnology.

"We cannot be sure yet who these people were," said Doctor Hrdlicka, "though it is probable that they were the ancestors of the present Eskimo or Indian or both. However, there seems to be a distinction between their art and that of the Eskimo of today. The outstanding characteristic of the former is their mastery of form and line in curves; of the present-day Eskimo it is the geometric design, with the drawings and carving of animals in their natural form.

No Change in Inhabitants.

"This might indicate that some other people were responsible for the older culture. But when we examine the skeletal remains there is no indication that any other people except Eskimo and Indian lived in these regions at any period thus far represented in the collections.

"The area over which evidences of the old culture are found is very extensive. Traces of it are found far down the American coasts. But it is not certain that it was actually practiced everywhere along these coasts. In these parts of the world one of the most striking phenomena is the evidence of extensive trade carried on in implements and other cultural objects. There is, for example, on the Kobuk river a mountain called Jade mountain. It was early known to the Indians and the Eskimo of the river and its green stone was made into adzes, drills, knives, lamps and other objects. Though this is the sole source of the green stone, objects made of it occur all the way from Barrow and Point Hope to Seward peninsula, the Asiatic coast, the Diomedes, the St. Lawrence, and down to Nunivak island.

Find Objects of Ivory.

"Similarly one finds the highly decorated objects of now fossil ivory on the Diomedes, the St. Lawrence, the Asiatic coast, Seward peninsula, and from Barrow again down to Nunivak island and possibly much farther. The designs seem to connect with the characteristic art of the northwest coast. The indications would seem to point to the old ivory cult having been central in northwestern Asia whence it spread by trading along the American coasts."

The Alaskan Eskimo, according to Doctor Hrdlicka's conclusions from a study of the skeletal material collected, is by no means the highly differentiated Eskimo of Labrador and Greenland. He often approaches, occasionally to the point of identity, on the one hand the Asiatic and Mongoloid types of people and on the other the American Indian, more particularly those of Alaska and the northwest coast.

"With the evidence now in our hands there can be no longer any hesitation," concludes Doctor Hrdlicka, "in believing that the Eskimo and Indian originally were not any two distinct races nor even widely distinct and far away types, but that if we could go a little back in time they would be found to be like two neighboring fingers of one hand, both proceeding from the same palm, or source."

Further exploration in the Far North, Doctor Hrdlicka is convinced, will be relatively simple and in a few years is bound to bring far-reaching conclusions.

"Up Salt Creek" Born in Clay's Campaign

Shepherdsville, Ky. — "Up Salt creek" has long been a popular expression with a mooted origin, but Dr. G. C. Crist, grandson of Gen. Henry Crist, Kentucky congressman, traces the phrase to a campaign of Henry Clay for the presidency.

The Sunday before the election, the local legend goes, Clay was far down the Ohio river and hired a boatman to row him to Louisville. Clay's opponents bribed the boatman, and when the skiff bearing Clay reached the mouth of Salt river the boatman quietly slipped into the smaller stream, his passenger being unaware of the move.

After the votes were in some one asked as to Clay's whereabouts. "He's gone up Salt creek," was the reply.

The phrase is a popular figure of speech to denote dismay or defeat.

SUES FOR DIVORCE.

Leah VanGundy has filed suit in Fairfield county against Wesley VanGundy asking for divorce temporary and permanent alimony, expenses of the suit and also that the real estate be decreed for her own and that the custody of the minor children be awarded her.

Plaintiff says she and defendant were married in Lancaster November 3, 1909, and that two children aged 16 and 8 were born to the union. She states that defendant left her an August 15, of last year without cause on her part and with no means of support. He says he will not live with her again, according to her claim, and she further states that due to his roving and restless disposition he has not furnished his family with a home.

On September 17, 1926, defendant filed a suit for divorce from her but the case was heard and dismissed in that court. Previous to that in May of last year, she had him arrested for non-support, but upon his promise to pay the charges were withdrawn. Due to his gross neglect plaintiff says she has been forced to live with her parents for five years. He earns from $12 to $15 a day as a bricklayer and owns lot 165 in Cole Martin Townsen addition which was purchased for $230 a large amount of which was paid for out of plaintiff's funds, she states. She also says she has been a dutiful wife and mother. E. C. Rutter, attorney for plaintiff.—Lancaster Eagle

x x x x x x x x

"The Poor Nut, heralded as the greatest of all college comedies, will be the attraction at the Hartman theater, Columbus, on next Monday, January 17, for an engagement of a week only. The comedy comes direct from 20 weeks at the Cort theater in Chicago. It enjoyed sensational success in New York for 42 weeks, in Boston for 10 weeks and in Philadelphia for eight weeks.

Patterson McNutt, the young producer, has mounted the play handsomely, and the famous stadium scene which stumped other Broadway managers, is staged so realistically that it has been the talk of critics and playgoers alike wherever the comedy has been presented.

Elliott Nugent, an Ohio boy and an Ohio State alumnus, plays the central character and is co-author of the play with his father, J. C. Nugent. Other plays by the Nugents include "Kempy" "The Trouper," "The Rising Sun" and "Gunpowder."

"The Poor Nut" deals with the rollicking adventures of John Miller, an Ohio State junior, who would rather earn $1200 yearly as a professor of botany than be a business man at an annual salary of $12,000. A Wisconsin university girl, however, thinks differently, and armed with letters in which he had confessed his desire to become a popular hero, she takes him in hand, psycho-analyzes him and starts the newly made hero off in a gale of hilarious difficulties.

The stadium scenes in the second act have caused much praise and acclaim from critics and followers of college athletics. The relay race has been described as being "as thrilling as all the chariots of 'Ben Hur.'"

The cast for the Ohio tour is the original company, and an especially large one for a dramatic play. Supporting Nugent are Norma Lee, Betty Garde, Percy Helton, Beach Cook, Frazer Coulter, Larry Fletcher, Harry Gresham, Thomas Sherer, Erie Kalkhurst, Cornelius Roddy, and a score of other well known players.

Matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

SHERIFF'S SALE OF FARM LAND.

Pursuant to an order of sale and an execution issuing from the court of common pleas of Pickaway county, Ohio, and directed to me as sheriff of Pickaway county, Ohio, I will offer for sale at public auction at the door of the court house, Circleville, Ohio, on MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1927, at 2 o'clock p. m. about 400 acres of valuable farm land situate in Monroe and Muhlenberg townships, Pickaway county, Ohio, known as the William H. Alkire farm, and about 3 miles northwest from the village of Darbyville, Ohio.

There is about 45 acres of good timber on this land consisting principally of white and burr oak. The soil is mostly black, with some red clay soil. Situate on good roads, convenient to market and well adapted to farming. There is a six room frame house, barn and implements shed.

This land is sub-divided and will be offered in several tracts and as a whole.

Terms:—CASH.

For particulars see, Abernethy & Simkins, or Barton Walters, attorneys, Circleville, Ohio, or the undersigned,

FRANK DAVIS,

Sheriff of Pickaway County, Ohio.

To Remove Tarnish

The tarnish on bronze is copper carbonate. It may be removed by friction or it may be dissolved in weak acids. Rottenstone mixed with oil to a creamy consistency is the common frictional agent used on these metals. Oxalic acid solution, buttermilk or vinegar, especially when warmed, quickly dissolves the tarnish on bronze.

SALESMAN WANTED

AMANDA FARM BUREAU

ELECT OFFICERS.
A very successful meeting of the Amanda Community Farm bureau was held Tuesday evening with a number of the members present.

Officers elected for the coming year were Robert Barr, president; Wallace Barr, vice president and Pearl Compton, secretary and treasurer.

Following the election of officers Alvin W. Barr, gave a talk on the coming Farm bureau campaign. In his talk, Mr. Barr brought out what the Farm bureau had meant to the farmers thru such agencies as marketing of live stock buying of feeds and fertilizer and legislation. He also told of the plan to be followed in the coming campaign.

Floyd Delashmuth, of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, Columbus, was present and gave a talk on how to set up a community campaign organization and how to put on a big community meeting.

Various committees were appointed and plans made for a big community meeting to be held in the near future.

Too Conspicuous

Clerk—You wish a birthday gift for your daughter? How about a dainty garter purse?
Father—No; it would be unwise for her to carry her money in plain sight.

IN A HOLE

He—What do you think of my prospects as a whole?
She—As a hole.

Considerate Candor

"If you will marry me," said the persistent suitor, "you will make me happy."
"You're happy enough now," answered Miss Cayenne. "I think a great deal of you, and I would rather see you joyously paying for taxicabs and theater tickets instead of worrying about the rent."

Yes, Where?

"What part of the body is the fray, teacher?"
"Fray!" What are you talking about?"
"This book says, 'Ivanhoe was shot in the fray.'"

The Fun of It

She (very stout)—Oh, if only I knew!

Gracious, Yes!

Alice—Jim certainly plays the violin beautifully.
Freddie—Zat so? Why, I didn't even know he could blow one!

Fatal

Grimes—A little learning, as the saying goes, is a dangerous thing.
Reed—Yes, especially if it's learning to drive a car.

The Dean and Molly Anne

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

"I WONDER why Dean Dudley never married."

Molly Anne, who had come to Handon to take charge of a book, candy and gift shop just off the campus, asked this question one day as she tied a packet of books and candy for one of the professors' wives. Dean Dudley had just come in to ask for a new book on psychology which Molly did not have on hand. She had promised to order it. Both she and her customer looked with considerable admiration after his tall, erect, well-dressed figure.

"Too many women want to marry him, I suppose," sighed the professor's wife, who gossip said had finally consented to marry her own near-sighted, stoop-shouldered husband when all efforts to catch the dean had failed. "It's a monstrous shame the way the women make a set for him. They've made him woman-shy."

"Pshaw," said Molly. "I'm not so sure I like him after all. Conciliated men are always tiresome."

Several times within the next week the dean dropped into Molly's shop, and every time Molly greeted him with a rather aloof tilt to her pretty head and told him that the book had not come.

"He's not so woman-shy as they say," Molly told herself. The dean, she concluded, was a first-rate philanthropist. Doubtless he had encouraged all these women who had subsequently set their caps for him. He had buzzed around them for a time just as he was now buzzing around her.

Finally the book came and, because the dean had asked her to do so, she telephoned to his office and left word. Fifteen minutes later the good-looking dean appeared in her store. Molly held her head even more saucily aloof than ever.

Looking embarrassed, almost furtive, the dean started away, and then turned back.

"By the way," he said, "I am going out of town over the week-end—have to take a day's trip by rail—make a speech in Pittsburgh and then come back again. I want some books to read. Now suppose you make up a packet of, say, six books. You just pick them out—something you think I'd like. Books I ought to have read—something highbrow, I suppose—may give me a cue for my speech."

"Very well," said Molly very formally. "I'll send them around."

"Don't bother," insisted Dean Dudley. "I'll just stop and get them. I might forget to take them if you sent them."

"You might forget to stop for them," said Molly.

"No chance of that," said the dean with boyish eagerness, and in spite of herself Molly blushed.

Molly plotted her revenge. Dean Dudley had made her blush and she would punish him for it. She'd make up a packet of books that would show her complete indifference to him. The packet was it was finally decided upon contained "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," a new book on practical vegetable gardening, a volume of bedtime stories, a life of the saints translated from the work of an Italian monk, a "Poker Player's Manual," and a little volume containing the world's most famous love poems.

That will finish him, thought Molly, and after he had called for the books she began to regret just a little her rash selection.

The next Monday she was strongly tempted to hide in the back of her shop when she saw him entering.

To her surprise he held out his hand—a hand of unusual magnetism.

"You are a rare mind-reader," he told her. "Every one of those books was just what I wanted. That book about the blonde I read first on my way out. It's ripping—made me forget my worries. Then I waded through the vegetable book—and as I was making a speech before an agricultural college it gave me just the information I needed. There were two or three little anecdotes in the 'Lives of the Saints' that surprised every one—and made the hit of the evening. I stayed for the night with the president of the college. He has two lovely kids and I didn't have anything for them—till it occurred to me the bedtime stories would be just the thing. That night I couldn't sleep so I read the poker book—and the next day coming home I fell in with a couple of millionaires in the smoking car. They asked me to play poker. I'd never held a poker hand before in my life, but I had become an expert overnight—and playing with them I got well acquainted—had a chance to talk Handon college to them, and before I left they had agreed between them to give enough to pay for a new science building. So you see how wise you were in choosing just the books you did."

"You haven't told me what you did with the sixth book," archly observed Molly Anne.

"Usually love poems would have seemed out of my line—but the truth is, Miss Molly Anne, that I can somehow sympathize with the poor fellows that wrote them. You see I'm very much in love with you, Molly Anne."

"I knew from the first," said the professor's wife, "that she was setting her cap for him. Why, she told me herself she thought it was funny he'd never married. Oh, well, she's ordinary, but at least she's good-natured."

Degrees of Gratitude

There be three degrees of gratitude, according to men's several abilities. The first is to requite—the second, to deserve—the third, to confess—a benefit received. He is a happy man that can do the first, no honest man that would not do the second, a dishonest man who doeth not the third.—Thomas Fuller.

AMUSEMENTS

The title fascinated us as we entered the Met theater and picture did more than that.

With this as her second starring film, Florence Vidor is now well on her way to the cinema heights. The heroine of "You Never Knew Women" and "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter" may well consider herself lucky at what the fates or Paramount (as you will) have seen fit to endow her with. Here, in her latest production,—a polite farce of the Parisian boulevards, drawing rooms and theaters,—Miss Vidor once again has an opportunity to display her prowess as a comedienne.

Malcolm St. Clair, a name coming into prominence more and more with each succeeding film, proves himself a worthy contender for a title as "Leader of the New School of Motion Picture Directors." Thruout "The Popular Sin," the story of which, by the way, was written by Monta Bell, can be seen those inimitable touches which go to make up and which are—St. Clair.

Nor can too much praise be given to any of the leading players. Clive Brook, Greta Nissen, Philip Strange, (all featured), Andre Beranger and Iris Gray are each excellent in their respective roles.

As to the story, it is a fanciful tale, that of Yvonne Montfort, married to a philandering stage-door-Johnny. He sends her to Biarritz where she meets Jean Corot, a famous playwright. They fall in love. Then begin a series of mix-ups, none of which are aided by the entrance of La Belle Toulouse Lulu or Alphonse Martin, three members of the Parisian theater.

Yes, for an evening's bright entertainment, don't miss Paramount's "The Popular Sin." It's sure to be that!

The MASTERPIECE of the Oldest Washer Manufacturer

NEARLY fifty years of experimenting and study, backed by unlimited resources, have produced this Model E-25 (Electric) Voss Flo-to-Plane Washer—and a new era in home laundering. 20% added efficiency is the result of this "Thorough Cleansing with a Light Touch." The dirt is out, but all the wear is left in.

Model E-25 Electric—compact built, with mechanism enclosed. Heavy, self-draining copper tub—one-piece cast-aluminum lid. Four-position self-locking wringer with 12-inch cushion rolls. Easily controlled. Special motor—simple flatbelt drive—cut-gear transmission. Folding bench.

The Flo-to-Plane Agitator takes advantage of the tendency of clothes to rise close to surface of water. At this point it functions—where sudas are thickest—with no roughing of clothes. It is the water-level agitator that makes washing easier on clothes, gets them cleaner, in less time. Come in and let us demonstrate this amazing washer to you.

Event of High Importance
In the year 1848, on December 8, there was made the first deposit of gold in the American mint. This gave currency an international value of face value here and abroad, and helped to make stable the medium of exchange.

Ancient Superstition
Bakers in olden times made little paste images with currants stuck in for eyes, and these were given to their customers at Christmas. It was believed that he or she who preserved the image unbroken all through the year would not be injured by fire or water or slain by the sword.

Practicing and Preaching
"Why did you laugh when that man at the adjoining table told the waiter he didn't know what to eat?"
"Oh, I happen to know who he is. He's an expert dietitian and writes for a chain of newspapers. Every day he tells several millions of readers what to eat."

Disgustingly Slow
"Yes," said the sweet old lady on the train, "this trip is a second honeymoon."
"Good gracious!" exclaimed the movie queen who was her chance companion. "Only your second."—American Legion Monthly.

Girls!
"I heard you spilled pink lemonade on your new dress."
"Yes, but it's all right. I had on a pink dress."

Handsomeness Plaid Coats Smart Winter Cloaking

Plush coats, not the ordinary sort, but gorgeous types, are one of the smartest items in winter cloaking. Startling effect is the idea in these ultra-fashionable plaids. Select a bold plaid of red and black of rich deep soft-pile all-wool fabric. Trim this with black fur, top it with a pert little red hat, carry a red leather hand-bag and you cannot fail to win fashion's enthusiastic smile of approval. A cape adds charm to the silhouette of the plaid model in the picture. The color scheme is brown, beige and cream-white with a beige caracul collar.

Fringe, Trimming Note for Day, Evening Wear

Fringe continues to hold a leading place in trimmings, both for day and evening wear.

The tiered effect is a favorite treatment for fringe. An evening dress of pink velvet with three tiers of beaded fringe is a recent French importation. Fringe made of flat sequins is decidedly effective especially when applied in tiers.

Fringes of metal are new in dress-making. They blend beautifully with the metal cloths that are so popular. A gold fringe on an evening gown of gold brocade and green velvet is an exquisite combination.

A smart costume in black and white has the black jersey skirt and the tulle blouse banded with deep black and white fringe. By the way, these varicolored fringes are new and decidedly effective.

One-Piece Frock Is to Be in Fashion Picture

While the dominance of the two-piece mode remains unquestioned, there is evidence on all sides that one-piece frocks are becoming more and more important. Authorities who spent the late summer at famous French and Spanish resorts reported that many of the smartest women there appeared in new versions of a one-piece dress.

It may be that a departure from a too casual style of dressing, a style which brought into prominence the informal costumes of skirt and jumper, is responsible for the awakened interest in models cut on straight slender lines. Their chief point of interest lies in a slightly bloused effect above a belt placed at the natural line of the waist or a trifle below.

Jewels and Feathers Transferred to Feet

The feminine shopping procedure has been exactly reversed. Once upon a time millinery was the item elegant of the ensemble and entire costumes were planned about the luxuriousness of a 20-inch willow plume or a jeweled headdress. But now we have literally transferred the jewels and feathers to our feet and the shoes form the nucleus about which the costume is assembled.

Boutonniere Is Large

Every costume has its appropriate flower, which to be smart must be huge. Enormous white carnations are often worn, as well as flat chignon roses or creamy gardenias, but a bit newer are large flat clusters of white violets surrounded with dark green leaves.

THE EXCEPTION

The young woman was shown round the ship by a mate. She saw everything, including the cabins, the stokehold, and the saloons. At last they came to the bridge, where the captain was standing.
"Ah, so that's the captain," remarked the visitor. "He's the man whose word is law while you're at sea, isn't he?"
"No, madam, not this time," said the mate. "You see, the wife's coming with him on this trip."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

COMPROMISE ON NAME

Grant Boone Miller, the new chief of postoffice inspectors, bears a unique name, due to a compromise that was reached by his Ohio father and mother when he was a wee infant.

"When I was born at Willard, O.," he said, "my father was set on naming me Ulysses Grant Miller, being an intense admirer of the great hero of the Civil War. But to my mother, for some reason, Daniel Boone, 'the wilderness scout,' had always been her idea of a hero and she was determined there must be a Boone in my name somewhere. So after some discussion, there was a compromise and I was named Grant Boone Miller."

Miller succeeds Rush D. Simmons as the head sleuth of the postoffice department and is now in direct command of a group of probably the most efficient and successful detectives in the world. Having been one of them for years and the nemesis of postal crooks and bandits the world over, he knows his "stuff."

WHAT PRICE ARMS?

An elderly negro had been hired to dust off the works of art in a southern museum. At the end of his first day he was found by the overseer very much dejected near a reproduction of the familiar statue of Venus. "What's the matter, Sam?" he asked. "Job too much for you?" "No, sah," said Sam, "but Ah hopes yo-all won't think Ah busted this monument."

AMERICAN

Women Are Urged To Build Up Home Life.

Old-fashioned family life is almost dead in America, contends Kathleen Norris, popular novelist, in an article in this week's Liberty. There is, she writes, "no more community living—no more interested discussion of family matters, of sewing, cooking, preserving, nursery, books."

Responsibility for the disintegration of American home-life lies chiefly with the women of America, is the implication made by Mrs. Norris. "Why don't we build homes, we American women," she asks, "places where everyone wants to be, centers of discussion, of service, of healthy, interested living? Everyone loves company, talk, events, good food, sound sleep, voices—in a word, everyone loves life," the writer points out. "And men, although they would be the first to deny it, really loved their homes when they were human composite groups, when other lives were drawn in to touch and mold their own."

"Nowadays," the writer asserts, "men and children and young persons have to go away from home to find life. And it is only the women of the family who can gather up the snappet threads and knot them together and build them into the strong cable that in the old days was the support of a great nation."

'Sleeping-Car Sirens' Bilk American Tourists

London.—Sleeping-car sirens are a menace to travelers in some parts of Europe. Wealthy Americans are said to be frequently their victims.

Good looks, beautiful clothes, a mixture of tears and coquetry, a card case containing names of famous persons of Europe and a tearful tale of a lost purse or railway ticket enable these adventuresses to extract large sums of money from male travelers.

Yugo-Slav police recently arrested a young woman of twenty-four who for the last three years has been levying toll from wealthy travelers on the famous Simplon Express, which rushes across the continent from Paris to Constantinople.

Popcorn

When popcorn refuses to "pop" it may be too dry and it may not be dry enough. If it is this year's corn, it may not be dry enough. Keeping in a warm place for a week or two will improve it. If the corn is old, it is probably too dry. Putting it in a paper sack, on a sheltered porch, where it will not get wet but absorb some moisture from the air, will help.

Act Now!

This sensational heating offer expires in a few days

The Heatrola "Enjoy-it-Now" Club

IT'S the opportunity that comes once in a life-time—the opportunity to enjoy the cheerful, healthful comfort of the famous Estate Heatrola now—though you really don't pay for it until next Fall. It's the most generous heating offer ever made, and possible only because of the co-operation of The Estate Stove Co., makers of the Heatrola.

We even pay you for your old stove. We take it down and put the new Heatrola in its place. No hardship to you in that—the whole job takes less than an hour. You pay us only $25 down—the balance is not due until September 15th. And then, if you wish, we will arrange for you to pay the balance in convenient installments.

An opportunity? It's the most amazing opportunity we have ever offered. Phone us for the details. Or stop in. This offer expires in a very few days.

Honor Among Thieves

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

THE "Honor Among Thieves club" was formed in the beginning more or less in the spirit of fun. Then, as the young girls of Akhurst, banded together in that secret society, began to mature, the club took on a more serious meaning.

There were all types of girls in the club. They were banded together in inviolable bonds to guard the welfare of one another, especially in affairs of the heart. If one of their members was being besieged by one of the opposite sex it was the duty of members of the H. A. T. to snoop into the man's credentials as a possible husband and in all ways try to insure the future happiness of their affected member.

Always when a love affair cropped up there was a meeting of the H. A. T. and the situation discussed openly from its very inception—the member herself giving full details up to date. After that the girls were regular bloodhounds on the trail of a doomed man—doomed, at least, if there was anything in his past or present that could put him out of the running.

One day Ivy Canfield told the H. A. T. of her engagement to Gregory Wells.

"You'll hardly credit," she told the meeting, "that I have become engaged to a man who hardly knows a golf club from a walking stick and who doesn't dance, tennis or indulge in any sports, but—there you are."

"Must be something wrong—no companionship—no common interests and—but what are his weaknesses? Is he a flirt?"

Ivy laughed her wholesome, frank laugh. "No—I think he is the finest type of man I have ever come across. If you are to nip this affair in the bud you'll have to put your finest hounds on the scent." For a moment Ivy's eyes grew thoughtful. "I do wish sometimes though that—well, either greater soul-stirring depths were in me or less in Gregory."

There was just a moment's silence among the members, then Doris Kenyon's soft voice broke it. "Perhaps loving so splendid a man will stir those deep places—love does wonderful things to us."

"I'm afraid the 'deeps' aren't here—that's the trouble. Now if it were you, Doris, well—it would be a different affair."

The club agreed unanimously that Ivy's man and Doris must meet. Had it not been Doris then another would have been selected. Ivy's future happiness hung in the balance. It was one of the club's most frequent means of discovering instability in mankind—they chose their most likely vamp and set her to work. If the man fell he was not considered a fit mate.

Therefore when Gregory Wells again came to Akhurst to visit Ivy he was presented to many of the Honor Among Thieves club girls, and among them was Doris.

Gregory shook hands with all the girls and his most genial big-hearted smile greeted them all. Then—Doris found her hand in his. The smile suddenly left his eyes, though it lingered on his lips and her fingers grew icy within his grip. Their hands fell apart and they did not speak.

She bucked up a few moments later and was her own laughing self and found that with an apparently effortless effort she could chat with Gregory in a voice that did not vibrate with the emotion his coming had awakened.

"Sing for us, Doris," commanded Ivy laughingly.

Doris sang for them. All the dormant ecstasy of her nature suddenly awakened, flung itself into her voice, and even Ivy held her breath to listen. When she had finished some three or more, she went out on the wide veranda to sit in silence.

Gregory Wells followed her out. Ivy watched him go and a queer little smile played about her lips.

Outside in the clear moonlight, Gregory reached the balustrade on which Doris leaned. She looked straight up at him, the moon shining into the depths of her eyes. Gregory put his hand over hers and his touch swept her being as by a mighty wave. "Don't," she said swiftly. "I am Ivy's best friend."

"It wouldn't make the slightest difference," Gregory Wells said. "Nothing would make any difference now—it must be—it couldn't be otherwise." His voice shook.

"Please send Ivy out to me," said Doris; "I want her."

"Ivy," said Doris steadily when her friend reached her side, "I am going to throw over the duties of the Honor Among Thieves club. I cannot vamp your Gregory because he's the only man in the world I could ever love" (she was a bit breathless) "and I want you to know I care too much for you to—to," her voice became inaudible.

A helpless laugh escaped Ivy, then she slipped her arm around Doris.

"Dear, don't take it so hard. A marriage between you and Gregory would be of Heaven itself, while with me it would only be of the Earth. There aren't so many great big love affairs that we can afford to let one slip by—there, there, dear, please don't cry. I shall be really happy only with some golf champion or baseball fan—and I'll be a far better friend to Gregory than I would ever be a wife." And with her queer little smile she slipped back into the house to send a man out to his mate.

37,000 TONS ADDED TO EARTH YEARLY

French Scientist Says Shooting Stars Not Dangerous.

Paris.—In a recent article in Le Petit Journal, Abbe Th. Moreaux, director of the Observatory of Bruges, discussed the annual fall visitation of shooting stars, particularly noticeable in France. He said:

"Every year readers of Le Petit Journal write to me about the appearance in the sky of luminous meteors which sometimes burst in the air and light up the landscape. When these stones reach the earth they constitute what scientists call aerolites. Their metallic character is now well recognized and there are many varieties of them to be seen in the beautiful collection of the Paris Museum of Natural History."

"Astronomers still discuss their origin, but all admit that the aerolites are the remnants of comets. Between the shooting stars, which weigh hardly a centigram, and the aerolites, which may weigh several tons, there would be perfect identity, if they were of the same weight."

Dangers Are Exaggerated.

"Formerly people attributed to these bodies all sorts of terrors. But today we possess better information about them and are in a position to say that the dangers from a fall of meteors are greatly exaggerated."

"Ought we to fear a general bombardment? I don't think so. The interplanetary spaces are being emptied more and more of the materials which contributed to the formation of the sun and the planets, and there is no reason in nature to foresee a terrifying recurrence of meteors. Undoubtedly certain years, like 1908, 1914 and 1926, show incontestable maxima. But year in and year out our planet receives on an average only 37,000 tons of foreign material."

"That is very little compared with the total mass of the globe—so little that at such a rate it would take 400,000,000 years to accumulate a layer one centimeter thick over the entire surface of the earth."

"At this rate the length of the day would be increased hardly a thousandth of a second in a million years. We have plenty of time to see what will happen, and the aerolites will hardly derange our sidereal clocks."

"Every year we notice, also, a return of warmth with St. Martin's summer, which arrives in November, and some subtle scientists have concluded that this phenomenon of warming up should be attributed to the big swarm of shooting stars, known under the name of Leonides, through which the earth passes at this period."

Heat Theory Is Denied.

"Here is an admirable piece of foolishness which will be passed out again this year if the autumn continues to be normal."

"Let us suppose, however, that at the moment of the November shower there falls on the earth one hundred tons of meteors every day, which is a very high maximum. Do you know what amount of heat that would develop at the end of a year for each square meter of the earth's surface? Exactly what the sun sends us in a tenth of a second. You see that a little figuring often prevents people from saying foolish things."

"But there is another consideration. If our dog days during St. Martin's summer were due to encountering meteor swarms, the phenomenon would occur everywhere on the globe. Now, all experienced meteorologists will tell you that St. Martin's summer is limited to certain countries and is not encountered everywhere on the earth's surface."

"The question is thus pretty well cleared up. Apart from being struck on the head by a meteor, which is an extremely rare occurrence, we can reassure ourselves as to the future which the shooting stars and the aerolites have in store for our planet."

Air-Mail Pilots Earn as High as $9,000 Yearly

Washington.—The lure of flying holds its monetary reward, at least for the air-mail pilot.

The aviator postman receives an annual salary of between $4,000 and $9,000. The high pay, plus the desire for the excitement of flying, recently caused two field superintendents of the service to desert ground jobs and return to piloting. Both now fly regular mail routes.

The mail pilot receives a base pay of between $2,000 and $3,600, depending on length of service, and is paid in addition by the mile for flying service.

For daylight flying, he receives a 5-cent rate between Cleveland and Cheyenne, 6 cents between Cheyenne and Reno, and 7 cents between New York and Cleveland, and between Reno and San Francisco. For night flying the mileage scale is doubled.

The hazards of mail piloting are held by postal officials to justify the pay.

Begging Pays

Philadelphia.—A wheel-chair beggar has been found to have a bank account of $15,000, an automobile and real estate, and to be paying $4 a day at a hotel.

Quit Tickling

Toronto.—Many adults are stammerers because mothers tickle baby's toes to bring that heribic smile, according to Dr. W. J. Blais.

"The Store That Treats You Right."

A New Broom Sweeps Clean, but the Vacuum Cleaner of These Reductions Sweeps Cleaner!

If you haven't been in to see Colwell's Red Tag Sale of Men's Clothing, Hats and Furnishings you haven't the slightest idea of how severe a store will cut prices when it makes up its mind to SELL.
